The Wonder of the World

By: Luz Stella Camacho, Bogota, Columbia, South America

An email was recently received from Luz Stella Camacho, one of the facilitators at the Trinidad Conference. After the Conference she and several participants visited The Fondes Amandes Community Re-Forestation Project (FACRP) and met with Akilah Jaramogi, the Executive Director. While there she was given the leaf of a plant. Luz Stella writes to share her experience.

Incredible in Bogota, a cold city, which is 2600 meters above sea level, after two months of waiting, with deep joy in my heart, I can tell you that from the leaf of the Wonder of the World sprouted two plants!!!

The beautiful Rastafarian woman who lives for more than 25 years in Trinidad and Tobago, who is also guardian of the ancestral knowledge of plants, a healer and environmental care educator gave me a leaf with special powers on the day of my flight to Colombia. She told me that by placing that leaf anywhere on the body where there is pain, it absorbs it immediately. Hence its great name: the Wonder of the World.

I took care of it and put it inside a book that same day; but there was an inconvenience: when I reached home I forgot about it. Just two days later I remembered where I placed it. Of course, I felt bad for such a mistake but took care of it and followed to the letter each of the instructions received. So I left the leaf on the soil in a pot in our terrace. The days passed and the leaf seemed to be drying up ... When I had lost any hope, by the time Spring began, it showed two small leafs ... Hallelujah!

The Wonder of the World has filled me with joy and deep gratitude ... I see how it intertwines with the birth and the fabric of a dream until it reaches reality. This was my experience at the Trinidad and Tobago Conference: Building Peace, Healing Ourselves and Healing the Earth. I met wonderful people from Reiki Home, Initiatives of Change (IofC) and Creators of Peace (CoP) and the chief of Santa Rosa First Peoples.

At the conference, diversity was present. The miracle of seeing how the different ways of celebrating the Unity became visible: the values of IofC, CoP, and the Reiki Home principles, the Water Ceremony led by the Chief on the river, the sacred of the elements. Hearing the representatives of the United Nations, environmental and social fabric organizations, healers, writers and others inspired us to personal change.

We are grateful to the businesses, Reiki centers and associations who so generously support Reiki Home by sponsoring us.

The Wonder of the World also offers the possibility of believing and creating from the difference of a more inclusive world. We saw the Wonder of the World happen when, during the sharing of the spiritual visions by the Catholic Bishop and the Chief, the Bishop asked forgiveness from the Chief for the 500 hundred years of abuse of the native people.

There is no better way to be, the inspiration to believe that we are capable of putting our light, abilities and gifts to work together and strengthen the hope, the confidence and the faith to manifest the Wonder of the World.

*I wanted to share that it is possible to sprout from the seeds more inspiration and beauty in the world. When we seek contact with the beauty of diversity, our hearts connect!!!
God bless you!!*

REIKI ASSOCIATIONS

Money is a big topic and often one with a lot of emotional juice surrounding it. It is a topic that is filled with trite sayings and overused idioms oft repeated in the world of spirituality. One of the most widely promoted concepts is that money is energy. Those of us who live in the world of Reiki, a practice based on Universal Life Energy, discover over time that money is only one part of a broader expression of energy.

As we explore the practice of Reiki in all its facets, we discover its numerous qualities and how it can affect many different aspects of life. Reiki, as an energy, has the ability to circulate throughout the body. It also expands beyond the body, awakening images and ideas, insights and memories. Reiki radiates outwardly as well, moving into other dimensions, connecting us to the ephemeral and the concrete simultaneously.

The initiated Reiki practitioner, through regular practice, comes to understand that Reiki is truly infinite. This quality of being infinite means there is always an abundance or surplus available at any time for every need. In fact, the more Reiki is used, the more benefits are given and received. There is no need to fear that Reiki will run out; no need to hoard it or limit its expenditure. This infinite quality also means that Reiki can readily be shared with others and kept for personal use. When the use of Reiki is limited, the benefits that have been increased through regular use slowly dissipate.

Belief systems have a huge impact on the way we relate to Reiki and other forms of energy. When money is truly believed to be a form of energy, all of the qualities we attribute to Reiki can be seen in terms of money. As a construct of human society, money is infinite because humans get to define money, what form it takes and can add money to circulation at will. As money is circulated throughout society, it becomes an energetic representation that when spent results in the acquisition of concrete materials. And just like Reiki, money can also be readily shared with others and/or kept for personal use.

When considering the place of money in our lives, it is helpful to recognize that there are many areas in life that have the potential for wealth and abundance - health, relationships, knowledge, creativity, skills, money, spirituality, natural resources, and time are some of them.

What is abundant in your life? Do you have surplus in some areas? What are a few ways to increase abundance in these aspects? How does community abundance influence your personal wealth? What changes in you will result in sustainable resources of wealth being more widely available in your community?

These are a few questions to begin an exploration into creating health around wealth. So, place your Reiki hands on yourself and ponder these ideas. See what answers Reiki helps you perceive.
